What Made Thought?
Can You Chew Wheat?
Alcohol Kills Too Many
Those Queer Russians

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THOMAS M'CARTER, head of New Jersey's public service corporation, voluntarily reduces street car fares, abolishing the 1½-cent "transfer rate" and doing away with the nuisance purchase of "tickens." That is news, because it is so unusual.

Nevertheless, those that are fairly old remember that the Manhattan Railway in New York made no profit while it charged 10 cents, and made plenty of money when it reduced the fare to five cents.

DR. IRVING S. CUTTER, dean of the Northwestern University Medical school, develops this theory: Eons of years back, which means billions of years, ultra violet rays were much more powerful than they are now, and they "activated" protoplasm into life."

That's how life came.

The doctor does not tell us what activated the living protoplasm into thought, emotion, art, imagination.

CHAIRMAN LEGGE of the farm board finds a sensible way of unloading some of the wheat that the government bought to stabilize the price that wouldn't stay stabilized, and his unloading will help, not hurt, farmers.

He will stabilize it by feeding it to the hungry. An excellent idea, and the wheat will be worth all that the government paid for it, no matter what the price per bushel.

Roman soldiers carried raw wheat in a bag, and chewed it as they marched. Their skulls show teeth in wonderful condition, much worn down.

Our citizens will hardly learn to chew raw wheat on the march, hunting for jobs.

SINCE 1920 and under prohibition deaths from alcohol in the United States have increased 300 per cent, according to Dr. Hoffman, life insurance company statistician.

It is particularly unpleasant to read that deaths from alcohol have increased among women especially. And it is surprising to read that in the United States under prohibition deaths caused by alcohol are more than 1,000 per cent more numerous than in a majority of the civilized countries. No civilized country has more than 10 per cent of our deaths from that cause.

What is the matter with us?

THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT boasts, with reason, of achievements under the "five-year plan." It has actually gathered together the billions needed to carry through the plan.

Russia does curious things. For instance, last year it distributed 12,000 tractors and $24,000,000 worth of other machinery among peasants and others.

The national income of Russia for 1930 is only 33,000,000,000 rubles, about $19,800,000,000. Yet how much you can do with a little money! Our income is more than a hundred billions of real dollars. But if you suggested giving 12,000 tractors to anybody you would be called not merely bolshevistic but insane.

REBELS FORCE RESIGNATION OF NATION'S HEAD

President Luis Quits Office as Revolution Reaches Dramatic Climax.

INSURGENTS IN CONTROL

Proclamation To End Civil Strife Issued from Provisional Headquarters.

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 24—The government of President Washington Luis, which for three weeks has been fighting a widespread revolutionary movement in Brazil, was overthrown today and the president resigned.

The blow which overthrew the administration was struck by a group of army and navy officers in Rio de Janeiro itself, a provisional headquarters being set up and a proclamation being issued to all Brazilians to end the civil warfare now in progress and to establish peace again.

The coup came with dramatic swiftness shortly after midnight, military police and some troops taking their positions around the presidential palace and cutting off traffic.

Holds Out For Hours

General Menna Barreto, head of the Rio de Janeiro garrison, acting in the name of a civil and military committee, went to the president and demanded his resignation, but for many hours the latter refused to step out of office.

After his resignation Luis gave himself up to General Azevedo, who made himself responsible for the former president's safety.

Not only was Rio De Janeiro in the hands of a civil and military committee which called for the restoration of peace in the present insurrection, but the government stronghold at Sao Paulo also appeared overthrown.

Dispatches from Sao Paulo said that there was firing against the government palace there and that 15 minutes later a white flag was run up. There were indications that Julio Prestes, president elect, against whom the insurrection had been principally directed, also would quit the field.

News of the coup was sent out by radio through the military committee and the strict censorship was lifted in order that the latest development might be sent out of the country.

Proclamation Issued

Later the provisional headquarters of the military committee issued a proclamation denouncing the civil warfare of the last three weeks and calling for peace.

The proclamation named five forts as headquarters of the provisional government. It was signed by Louo De Deus Menna Barreto, general of the division, and Colonel Bertholdo Klinter as adjutant.

The administration fell before a revolution which, beginning Friday, Oct 3, just three weeks ago, spread rapidly over the entire republic until but three of the major eastern seaboard states, Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Bahia, remained loyal to the government.

President Washington Luis, whose full name was Dr. Washington Luis Pereira de Souza, assumed office Nov. 15, 1926, and was to have served until Nov. 15 of this year when he would be succeeded by President Elect Julio Prestes, who recently completed a visit to the United States.

Where Revolt Started

The revolution broke first in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, furthermost south of the divisions which make up the Brazilian union. Troops formed there under the

EMPLOYMENT PLANS ADVANCE

Countrywide Movement Aids Federal Program To Provide Jobs.

IMPROVEMENT REPORTED

Federal Reserve Board Summary Shows September Situation Better.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 — News of better industrial and construction activity in September came from the federal reserve board today to add a measure of optimism to the difficult unemployment relief task.

Meanwhile, Colonel Arthur Woods, the relief director, moved ahead in his preliminary efforts to gather with him the experts he needs to compose the general board of strategy which is to lead government and business to finding jobs or aid for millions.

General Program Reported

From every side, however, came news of steps being taken without awaiting the set-up of a central organization. Not only business men and industrialists but great numbers of workers were registering their willingness to contribute aid. Two government branches took steps to help in a small but substantial way, the postoffice ordering all overtime eliminated and the work given to substitutes, while the shipping board announced it would "forget" for the time being the plan to cut down the merchant fleet corporation's staff in Washington and elsewhere. Altogether this cut would have laid off some 700 employes at a saving approximating $1,000,000.

The reserve board's summary of business and financial conditions for September found that after the substantial decrease in factory output from May to August, September had shown an upward trend, which did not however, reach former production figures for the same month.

Increase in Factories

Employment in factories also increased, though less than the usual gain for this season of the year. Residential construction was said to have increased materially.

Suggestions reaching the farm board that its supply of wheat be turned over to feeding the jobless drew from Chairman Legge the statement the board would be glad to do so if congress would reimburse it for the cost of the grain, which was acquired in stabilization operations.

EMPLOYMENT CHIEF ADOPTS OHIO PLAN

Woods Appoints Croxton To Extend Method into Other States.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 — The "Ohio idea" of combatting unemployment has commended itself so highly to federal authorities dealing with the problem that Frederick C. Croxton of Columbus was appointed today to assist in extension of the plan to other states.

The designation of Croxton was announced by Col. Arthur Woods, federal director of unemployment relief.

The "Ohio idea" briefly is that the state, county and municipal authorities get together and so coordinate their public work that it will be distributed where the need is greatest, and provide an even flow that will prevent gluts and shortages in the labor market, while at the same time extending the minimum of relief.

RETURN FIRE OF OFFICER

Attempt To Arrest Fugitives Yesterday Futile as They Refuse To Halt.

By The Associated Press

CHILLICOTHE, O., Oct. 24—The wooded terrain of Ross county, in the vicinity of Taylor's hill, hid the trail of two men—believed to have been the Bowman brothers, leaders of a notorious gang of robbers—long enough to allow them to escape, temporarily at least, officers learned at daybreak today.

All night a posse composed of deputy sheriffs, guards from the reformatory and city police officers kept vigil over a wood into which the men disappeared last night after exchanging shots with a police officer. Early today the officers entered the woods only to discover the men had fled, leaving their automobile, an expensive make, bogged down in the woods.

The men, who returned the fire of the officer, who shot when they refused to heed his command to halt, were believed to be Neal and Howard Bowman, leaders of a band of robbers who have been operating in southern Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. The automobile captured this morning

SAFE IN OFFICE LOOTED OF $171

G. Farr Larie, Insurance Man, Finds Vault Robbed and Then Locked.

A very efficient burglar last night looted a safe in the office of G. Farr Larie, insurance agent and former city councilman, at 120½ South Main street and escaped with $171.25 in cash, spurning checks and other articles of value.

To obtain the money, the burglar worked the combination of the safe and jimmied a small drawer containing the cash. The money was contained in a wooden drawer, one of three in the safe. The burglar did not tamper with the other two drawers, apparently knowing where the money was kept.

Police could find no traces of the means used by the burglar to obtain entrance. All doors were locked, and an investigation today showed none of them had been tampered with. Windows in the rear of the rooms and a skylight above had apparently not been disturbed.

It was impossible to obtain fingerprints from the combination knob of the safe, as the burglary was not discovered until this morning when the safe was opened by Mr. Larie.

Mr. Larie was in the office yesterday until 7:20 p. m. and remembers locking the safe.

Throng Arriving for Tomorrow's Royal Wedding

By The Associated Press

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 24—Kings and commoners, statesmen and hawkers, soldiers and priests converged on this little city today in anticipation of the marriage tomorrow of Princess Giovanna, third daughter of the Italian king to Czar Boris III of Bulgaria.

Prior to the ceremony a royal train bearing the bride and groom, King Victor Emanuel, Queen Elena, and others attending them will arrive from Turin and San Rossore. After the ceremony it will carry the royal figures back to old haunts while Boris and Giovanna leave for a short Adriatic honeymoon prior to a second ceremony at Sofia.

The Roman Catholic ceremony here is by special dispensation of the pope, who is permitting Giovanna to marry Boris, of the Greek orthodox faith, with the proviso that their children be brought up as Roman Catholics and that there be no succeeding Greek orthodox marriage ceremony which might be construed as having been recognized by the Vatican. Because of these stipulations it is regarded as probable that the Sofia ceremony will be little more than

The flight to Columbus was made in a tri-motored plane of the type to be used in hauling passengers and mail over the new mail-passenger route from New York to Columbus.

SEWAGE PLANT COST IS LOW

Operation of System Here Costs 63 Cents a Year for Each Resident.

NEEDS CAREFUL ATTENTION

Superintendent Points to Poor Economy of Neglecting Costly Plant.

Editor's Note—Believing citizens of Marion are entitled to full information regarding proposals to be voted upon, The Star has opened its columns to officials of the city who are asking authority for a special one-mill tax levy for municipal operating expenses. This is done solely for the purpose of giving these officials an opportunity to make clear their reasons for requesting the levy.

It costs only 63 cents a person a year to dispose of Marion's sanitary waste through the sewage disposal plant. Yet, without the one-mill levy the city is asking at the November election for operating expenses of the city, officials claim operation of the plant, regarded one of the most efficient and finest in the state, may have to be curtailed.

With tax collections and anticipated income from several city revenue producing departments falling short, the city is now receiving sufficient funds to operate only 10 months a year, city officials claim.

A detailed discussion of the sewage disposal plant is given by Floyd G. Brown, superintendent of the plant, to show the need of a one-mill levy.

"Poor Economy"

"It is poor economy and poorer business methods to permit a recurrence of early sewage plant failure by not providing sufficient funds for its care, because there is nothing but trouble ahead for the city that allows its sewage

GANGSTER KILLED IN GANGLAND REPRISAL

Joe Aiello, Reputed Capone Rival, Murdered with Machine Guns.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 — Gangster guns, silent in Chicago for some time, opened up again last night and removed Joe Aiello, one of the few remaining rivals of Alfonse Capone from the picture of Chicago's crime.

Aiello, reputed alcohol king, partner of George (Bugs) Moran, and with Moran listed by the Chicago Crime commission as a "public enemy" was shot and killed by a gang of men, as he left the apartment of Patsy Presto.

Seventeen or more bullets were fired into the gang leader from machine and other guns secreted in three different positions, as Aiello walked into what the police said was one of the most elaborate assassination plots in gangland history.

As he stepped out of the Presto apartment, presumably to enter a cab, machine gun fire opened from a third floor window of an apartment across the street. Aiello turned and fled back into the vestibule and attempted to arouse some one in the apartment. Finding his way blocked by locked doors, he fled into the apartment court yard only to meet the fire of machine guns coming from a window of a building to the north. Retreating to the rear of the court in an attempt to escape over a back fence, he ran into a fusillade of shots coming from the basement of the building housing the Presto

M'CULLOCH HITS AT INTERNATIONALISM IN REPUBLICAN SPEECH

Democratic Women of Eighth District Meet Here for Organization.

United States Senator Speaks at Shovel Auditorium; Is Luncheon Guest.

MRS. PYKE GIVES TALK TOUCHES LABOR PROBLEM

Charges O. P. Untrue to National and State Campaign Pledges.

Candidate Attacks American Capitalists Who Build Factories in Foreign Lands.

Charging Republicans have been untrue to their campaign pledges of 1928 both in national and state government, Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, national Democratic committeewoman in Ohio appeared as principal guest speaker before nearly 150 women from the Eighth congressional district at a luncheon meeting in Hotel Harding today.

Delegations of Democratic women from Hardin and Hancock counties were present at the luncheon, over which Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, district committee woman, presided. The meeting was sponsored by the Marion Democratic Women's club of which Mrs. J. B. Hoagland is president.

Although Mrs. Pyke's chief interest in the meeting was the organization of Democratic women, she launched a vigorous attack on the Cooper and Hoover administrations.

Declaring women take their politics seriously and are interested in the vital issues of the campaign as much as men, Mrs. Pyke launched into a fiery speech with "prosperity" as a central theme.

"The campaign issue in 1928 was 'prosperity.'" Mrs. Pyke declared. "We do not hold the Republican party responsible for the present depression, but with leaders of the party taking credit for prosperity in the last 10 years, they must in some measure assume some part in the depression of the last two years.

Says Tariff No Help

"I want to discuss the tariff, which definitely has brought about greater distress to the farmer, and no help to lagging industries. We were promised in 1928 that trade relations with foreign countries would be stimulated and increased. Instead there has been an annual decrease of $5,000,000,000 in foreign business.

"I believe there is a difference in the political, economic and moral policies of the two parties. In political difference, we uphold the fundamental principle of a party of equal opportunity to all. By moral difference, I mean that the Democratic party assumes the responsibility for candidates it offers the electorate. Nationally we have never had to apologize for the honesty and integrity of a Democrat intrusted with public office.

"With the state issues most of us are more familiar. Our candidate for governor is challenging the record of Gov. Cooper for the last two years and has reviewed the economic administration of Gov. Cooper to the voters of the state. The main issue in Gov. Cooper's 1928 campaign was 'economical administration of the state government.' Instead of reducing state governmental costs, Gov. Cooper permitted them in 1929 to exceed 1928 expenditures by $9,000,000.

White's Abilities Praised

"Our gubernatorial candidate, George White of Marietta, is a man of ample education, a graduate of Princeton, and a man of public experience. He served in the state legislature and congress of the United States, and has been a staunch supporter of the state party. He has served as chairman of the national committee.

Miss Mary White, daughter of the candidate for governor, appeared to be unable to attend the meeting this afternoon, although she was

Radio Treat

Will Rogers Special

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 24—Say, we got a great treat in store for us next Tuesday evening. Bernard Shaw is going to talk to us over the radio for 40 minutes.

He is the most interesting and entertaining man in the world today, he and Mussolini are pretty near a tie. You don't need to ask any questions when you meet either one of 'em. Just sit still and listen.

Shaw told me that the United States and Russia are the most unique countries in the world today. Russia was trying a great experiment, and was trying everything that come along, and that we were both in the experimental stage. England don't know yet whether Shaw is for 'em or against 'em.

CAPTAIN SAYS LOCAL MEN NOT IMPLICATED

Mason Does Not Believe Guardsmen Here Connected with Prison Theft.

Capt. John Mason, in charge of Co. D, 166th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, stationed at the armory here, declared today he had made a thorough investigation within his company and that he is confident none of his men were implicated in the alleged purchase of a bolt of cloth from a convict at Ohio State penitentiary while that institution was under martial law early this year.

Reports from Columbus yesterday stated that two Marion members of the Ohio National Guard had purchased material from convicts for $2 and that prosecution of the men was probable.

Action probably will be taken through military channels, Captain Mason said. He said the theft was allegedly committed while the penitentiary was under martial law, in charge of Col. Robert E. Haubrich, commanding officer of the 166th regiment, and that Warden Preston E. Thomas would have no authority to prosecute in the case, nor would local police have authority to arrest the offender for an act allegedly committed while he was serving as a state officer.

Coupe Said To Have Entered Intersection on Amber Light.

Considerable damage was done when a pumper truck from No. 1 of the Marion fire department collided with a Chrysler coupe driven by Sam Burgess of 257 Hane avenue at Prospect and Center streets late yesterday afternoon.

The engine company, going north on Prospect street to answer a call to the Catholic Sisters' home at 274 North Prospect street struck the coupe at the intersection on Center street. Officials say Burgess drove into the intersection while traffic lights were flashing the amber signal to give the fire department the right of way.

The front end of the fire truck was badly damaged. The axle was bent, the radiator punctured, and the bumper and a running board badly bent. One side of the Chrysler coupe was dented.

The fire was extinguished after $10 damage had been done. Grounded electric wires were responsible for the blaze.

PLAINTIFF RESTS IN GAS EXPLOSION CASE

Company To Present Witnesses This Afternoon in Damage Action.

Witnesses for the plaintiff completed their testimony this morning and defense witnesses were scheduled to take the stand this afternoon in the $25,500 personal damage suit of Clinton Thompson, a minor, against the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which started yesterday in common pleas court before a jury.

Thompson contends he was permanently injured when burned about the face and body in a gas explosion at 635 West Columbia street, Aug. 26, 1929. The explosion claimed the life of Paul Blankenship of Ashland, Ky., and injured Eugene Workman, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Workman.

The explosion occurred when Blankenship lighted a match in the cellar of the house in an effort to find an electric meter.

J. W. Jacoby, Thompson's attorney, contends that the gas company was negligent in that its inspectors allegedly turned on the gas that day without making proper investigation of the piping system, which he claims was faulty.

The defendant, for which Hoke Donithen is counsel, attempted to show yesterday that it has no responsibility for gas pipes in homes but that its responsibility extends only to the gas mains from which gas for homes is piped.

DEATH REVEALS LIFE OF LONG SUFFERING

Diary of Dead Doctor Unveils Secrets of Headache That Lasted 23 Years.

By International News Service

LONDON. Secrets of a life of torture, including a constant headache for 23 years, are revealed in the poignant diary of Dr. Leonard P. Mark, surgeon on the staff of St. Bartholomew's hospital, who died here a fortnight ago at the age of 75 from the rare and painful disease known as acromegaly, which causes an enlargement of the bones.

From the time that he discovered he was a victim of this disease, 25 years ago, until his death, the unfortunate doctor kept a diary of the symptoms. At his wish, this diary has now been handed over to St. Bartholomew's hospital for use in the study of the obscure Malady. Before he died the doctor also directed that his body be handed over to the surgeons of the hospital for post mortem examination. In his diary, the doctor reveals that for years he failed to diagnose his disease as acromegaly, the cause or cure of which has never been definitely established.

Things that make your reputation are past before you can change them.

Every man has thrown away enough money to buy a farm.

... Ain't talking of ... old man. Just let me see if ... that swelling of yours is gone yet."

He plunged into a discussion of Grannock's general health and kept at it until Hallie was again visible between the trees.

"I'm here again, Saxby," she called, and Lytton recognized this as an agreed signal which would relieve Grannock of speculating on her nearness. "I find I've left some things at Mrs Bartholomew's. Will you give me a lift there, Doctor Lytton?"

"With pleasure."

"Nurse Casey will be back from her walk soon and in any case Saxby likes a little time to himself occasionally." Her hand was on Grannock's shoulder and Lytton saw him carry it to his lips. Then instead of releasing it, Grannock held it with his other hand.

"I'm just learn, this business next," he said concernedly. "This hand of yours. Rose, is a little different from the hand of any one else in the world. I must learn to feel that little difference. And then I must feel your face. Bend down just a second. Lytton says faces are rarely symmetrical. Perhaps I can tell in my fingers where one half is out of line with the other, now that my eyes aren't able to deceive me."

Hallie had whitened but, after one startled inquiring look at Lytton, she had bent to the groping question of her lover's hand.

It was the doctor, hardened to so many scenes, whose nerves jangled and who cried out:

"No! No!"

"What's up?" grunted Grannock, his face stubborn on Hallie's face.

"Don't do it!" jerked Lytton. "Don't do it, that's all."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Friday. When I had woke up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth it was so cold that I took my clothes down to the base burner to dress myself. It won't be so bad when it gets colder and has been cold longer, but I ain't used to it yet. So I was standing by the base burner in my shirttail holding my pants up to get them warm, when all at once someone right behind me said "Good morning, and how is Thomas Aristides this morning?" It was my teacher's voice and I tried to run right through the base burner getting out into the kitchen. It was funny I could hit the stove with my bare self that way and not get burnt. I was only red a little. But I sure was ashamed.

When I got my clothes ... in the milk I was going to ... out without any breakfast, ... my father called me and when a fellas father calls him he has to go. So I said, 'Yes, sir,' and washed my face and hands and went in. The teacher's eyes kinda twinkled when she looked at me. I didn't say anything. I just let them talk. I found out that she came visiting last night after me and Jubilee had went to bed and my mother asked her to stay all night, so she did and she slept with my sister. I bet my mother asked her to stay so my father wouldn't see her home. My mother don't want him out at night with women. The teacher said she would walk to school with me, but when she found I had to go to the pasture she changed her mind. I told the band about her calling me in my shirttail and they hoorawed me all the way to the pasture. A fella can't win for losing. I was ashamed when I got to school and she smiled at me. But she told my father. I always like to see people so that was pretty good.

We went to the lot where the house burnt down and there was a lot of water standing there so we dug a ditch from it to the old cistern and after a while we worked some bricks loose so the water could run into the cistern and we were all working and paddling around having a good time and pushing the water along with some fence boards when Peanuts leaned over and looked down into the cistern to see how much water there was in it when Feeble pushed the Lost Bag of Tripe against him and he went in head first, and when we had helped him out and the Lost Bag of Tripe told him he didn't mean to do it that was the first he knew who done it, and I never did see two boys run so fast. Feeble said it was a good thing. It would get him warm and keep him from catching peonia or something. If he couldn't catch peonia then peonia is fast. Tomorrow is Saturday, and we're going to go somewhere and do something.

French Women Not So Meek as Public Thinks

PARIS—French women are not always the meek and feminine creatures that people have always believed them to be. Just now, a large group of girl students at the Paris University in the Latin Quarter are very much up in arms and are accusing the authorities of showing real caveman tactics with them. There is even strong talk of a general strike during the approaching term, not that the old University is unfamiliar with such demonstrations but this will probably be the first one brought on directly by the women alone.

The students are cross because they have been reprimanded for using too much rouge and powder and for going sans stockings.

CITY OFFICIALS ON KIWANIS PROGRAM

Chief, Mayor and Councilman Discuss Three-Mill Tax Levy.

City officials took the floor at the Kiwanis meeting yesterday in the Marion club to boost the one-mill tax for city operating expenses. Voters will be asked to approve the levy at the November election.

Chief T. J. McFarland gave a history of city finances since 1918 when he claims the present financial condition of the city began to grow. At that time bonds were issued for operating expenses if the city ran short of funds. A share of this money each year goes to retire bonds for operating expenses more than 15 years ago, said Chief McFarland.

He declared it is impossible to continue the present program of the city without this tax increase.

"It's your problem as much as ours," Chief McFarland declared. "We are your servants but we can only give you what you are willing to pay for. We can't save the present number of firemen and policemen and operate the city hospital and other departments with it money.

Mayor L. Don Jones pointed out that the one mill levy would not increase the tax rate here this year as county officials are asking for a renewal of the mill levy this year are asking only the mill increase this year instead of the two mill levy that we pay this year.

"Ninety per cent of the city operating expenses are fixed expenses which cannot be cut without reducing the number of employes of the city or eliminating city projects or street lights," W. T. Sale, Kiwanian and member of the finance committee said.

"Without the additional funds the one mill levy would bring we can not meet the fixed operating expenses next year," he said.

These Harding Gridders Will Try To Put The Skids Under Redmen Saturday

STILL STRIVING TO WIN FIRST VICTORY

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star.

THREE major issues will be at stake Saturday afternoon when the whistle sounds to put the pigskin into play in the annual football battle between the Harding High and the Bucyrus High grid aggregations. First, both will be fighting to prevent being shoved in a quite unceremonious manner into the last place in the league standings with little possibility of being able to emerge from its accompanying dark recesses for at least another 12 months; second, each will be battling to win the first N. C. O. game of the season, third, each of them will be at "tooth and nail" to hand an arch rival a much longed for beating.

When Harding clashes with other NCO teams it's just another football game. The same goes for Bucyrus. But when Harding and Bucyrus lock horns or whatever football teams do when they get together on a gridiron, it's war, and war always means (page General Sherman) a great football game. The Saturday tussle promises to be no exception to the rule.

If reports erupting at present from the smoking battlefronts of both the principals of tomorrow's conflict can be accepted at face value there is going to be an unusually conglomerate and varied exhibition of football demonstrated before the eyes of whatever spectators brave what is booked to be a chilly and altogether uncomfortable afternoon to see this annual renewal of grid rivalry between the Redmen and the Presidents. Both teams have been drilling on a number of plays designed to add both power and deception to the Saturday attack. Harding has also spent a lot of time in blocking and tackling, a department of play that in Harding games so far has been sadly deficient.

Lineup Shifted

The lineup of the Harding team has been shifted so repeatedly during the 1930 season that in several of the positions it is difficult to name the first string man. However, from the above photographed assortment of material, the majority of starting players for the Saturday engagement will be selected. One man not in the picture, Jack Ling, tackle, will probably either be in the starting lineup or will be sent in before the game has progressed very far. Dick Morgan, halfback, is the only individual pictured who will not be in condition to start the battle Saturday. He is still on the sidelines nursing a cracked rib received more than a week ago.

Sloan will be back in the harness again this week after a layoff from a bruised kidney. He is expected to be in condition to last a whole game if necessary.

Junior Clay, former stalwart of the forward wall, has been shifted to the fullback post and will probably be in that position when game time rolls around tomorrow. If he is switched back to his old tackle post Houseworth will start at fullback. Which Houseworth will go if Clay starts at full is not certain. He may not start the game but is almost certain to play a good share of the time. Clay is the mainstay of the Harding defense and also a very potent figure in the offense of the Presidents. His passing could be more accurate, but he can hit a line hard and is proficient at shoving off tackle.

Wright To Play

Dick Wright will cavort at a wing back position and should get off to some sensational gains around the ends or through the tackle. Wright is not a smashing nor particularly hard running back, but he is the most elusive man on the squad and is hard to bring to earth when he gets out in the open spaces. His value is somewhat limited, however as he leaves something to be desired on defensive and blocking play. He will, even with these shortcomings probably as important a cog in the Harding backfield as will be on the field Saturday.

Bob Bush and either Hunt or Don Lindsey (not pictured) will complete the Harding backfield Saturday.

Eric Williams is generally conceded the starting post in the center of the front line activities. He is being pushed hard now by Guthrie, a sophomore lineman who looks like a distinct threat to take over the job although Williams has played a fairly steady game for Harding this season.

What! No Helmet?

Eckenbarger and Jevas seem to be fixtures at the guard position. Eckenbarger a 225 pounder is quite easily jostled around by opponents and while not so heavy by about 75 pounds Jevas is one of the hardest fighters on the squad. His refusal to wear a helmet during the game causes him to be easily distinguishable in play. Clay is another player who declines to accept the leather protection for his cranium. Both of these men have easily singled out during a year by this unconvention... of protection. They would ... even if they were.

Bob Smith is a sure starter at right tackle berth and ... this game Clay has been ... same time other post. Now ... seems assured to get ... that Clay has gone to the ... post.

Newby and Sloan have been ... first starters on the flanks but ... with Newby may be replaced ... Sloan. All three of them are pretty sure to play Saturday however and will also more than likely go into the battle before it is completed on one of the wings.

WILDCATS HOPE FOR ILLINI-PURDUE WINS

Defeats for Badgers, Michigan Would Give Purple Great Chance for Title.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The very best wishes of Northwestern's Wildcats will accompany Illinois and Purdue Saturday in their football endeavors against Michigan and Wisconsin, respectively.

Northwestern is reasonably confident of getting through its Big Ten schedule undefeated but fears that Michigan, which it does not meet, will do the same thing unless the Illini win at Ann Arbor Saturday, thus, theoretically, doing the Wildcat out of an undisputed title.

Coach Dick Hanley's eleven will meet Wisconsin Nov. 15, but would like to see Purdue slow up the surprising Badgers. Minnesota also is undefeated, but Northwestern figures to take care of the Gophers a week from tomorrow.

While its principal rivals are engaging in vigorous tests tomorrow, Northwestern will give its reserves some experience against Centre college. The once famous Praying Colonels are not expected to play dead for Northwestern, but the game is a non-conference affair and Coach Hanley is eager to open up some of his less experienced players before Wisconsin, Minnesota and Notre Dame are encountered.

Light Drills Only

Training activities in all camps were reduced to the limbering up stage today. Michigan took only a light drill yesterday to prevent further injuries while Illinois finished its work for the invasion of Michigan, and had traveling on its schedule for today. Wholesale injuries have hampered practice at Chicago, and Coach Stagg early this week decided to let the Mississippi game take care of itself, with Princeton to be met next week.

Purdue and Wisconsin which meet at Lafayette wound up preparation in good shape for their important struggle. The Boilermakers did well enough in yesterday's drill to be let off early, while Wisconsin's offense again functioned properly.

Notre Dame and Indiana were enroute to the scenes of intersectional strife, the Irish having left for Pittsburgh last night and the Hoosiers having started for Dallas, Tex., at noon yesterday, on the first jump toward their game with Southern Methodist university.

Minnesota, Iowa and Ohio State have open dates which probably will be utilized for practice contests.

Yale football teams, according to the experts, labor under the disadvantage of outmoded and cumbersome suits.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

SATURDAY afternoon while Marion Harding is battling Bucyrus on the home town layout of the Redmen, Ashland will be meeting the Shelby Whippets on the Ashland gridiron. The two games will be as far apart as league standings are concerned as it would be possible to have them. Harding and Bucyrus will be fighting to keep from getting what probably will amount to a permanent berth for this year in the cellar of the league while Ashland will be battling to keep a clean slate and a chance at the circuit championship. Galion at present is leading the league with two victories and a tie game. Ashland is right behind with one victory and one tie and Mansfield has the same record. If Ashland can beat Shelby and this appears probable now, the Hilltoppers will have hurdled two barriers in the conference race.

If Shelby loses to Ashland, Marion or Bucyrus, (whichever one is beaten tomorrow) will not be so far behind the Whippets. None of these three teams have an impressive record for the year so far and none of them figure to gain a whole lot during the rest of the year.

All sports writers have to have something to write about and this one is no exception. Consequently the names of those teams whom this department is picking to emerge victorious in Saturday's battles follow. Harding will beat Bucyrus in a close game and Ashland will beat Shelby, but not by a big score. Galion who is meeting a non league foe in a nocturnal battle tonight in Elyria is named to lose to the upstaters by 15 points. Mansfield doesn't play this week but will probably be interested visitors at some other league fray where one of their future competitors are engaged. The logical place would be the Marion-Bucyrus fracas as Harding stacks up against the Murphymen next Saturday.

Football activities having passed their half way point with last week's schedule and rapidly progressing into the final stages of the campaign, vague rumblings are being heard on the local sports front concerning the coming basketball season. The Y. M. C. A. is reported to be formulating plans for the entertainment of the Sunday school leagues again this year on the Y. floor. The church organizations (two of them) are expected to be out en masse again this season.

Aside from the church loops the Marion Business college is planning on a team this season and several rumors have been heard concerning proposed teams. St. Mary's will again be in the field with a school team. Harding High will have a letter team to the game this year to vie with St. Mary's for local scholastic honors. The Shovel-Y-Ind is club (formerly the Y-Indus club will be back to defend their state Y. M. C. A. title. The Y-Indus team is playing this year under the auspices of the Marion Steam Shovel Athletic Association. It will play on the Steam Shovel court.

Ohio Grid Spotlight To Shine on Smaller Teams

BY LATHROP MACK
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 24.—Ohio State's football team is idle this week-end, permitting the spotlight of interest to play wholly upon the 37 smaller colleges of the state this week-end.

Consequently, chief interest will be directed to Cleveland where Western Reserve will take its fourth consecutive whipping from Carnegie Tech; to Oxford where Miami attempts to stop the Buckeye championship march of the champion Ohio university team; to Delaware where Ohio Wesleyan entertains Hoge Workman's Simpson college team in an intersectional affair, to Oberlin for the traditional battle between Wooster and the Yeomen, and to New Concord where tangle Mount Union and Muskingum, two of the strongest Ohio conference teams.

All these games are scheduled for tomorrow but there are four today which are distinguished for different reasons.

Heidelberg's undefeated team, one of the finest in Ohio, meets University of Toledo, in Toledo tonight. The Toledoans have not won a game and probably won't even give the Student Princes a scare.

Wittenberg-Xavier

Wittenberg, one of the ablest teams in the state although once beaten and twice tied, journeys to Cincinnati for a game with Xavier. Davis and Elkins sails into John Carroll in Cleveland tonight. The scarlet hurricane from West Virginia probably will make it two out of three victories.

In the only afternoon game today, Bowling Green and Findlay, the only undefeated teams in the Northwest Ohio conference, battle at Findlay.

The really important games, however, are set for tomorrow.

Ohio university, undefeated champion of the Buckeye conference in 1929 plays its first defense of the title at Miami. Both teams are strong. It is Miami's homecoming and the Red team will fight hard.

Cincinnati and Denison will probably be playing for the last place in the Buckeye standings at Cincinnati. Denison is likely to win.

Oberlin Meets Wooster

Oberlin and Wooster, old time rivals of many years, probably will play their usually colorful game, but Wooster appears the stronger this season. Muskingum, too, rates precedence over Mount Union and the winner will undoubtedly have a lot to say about "the best team in the Ohio conference this year."

Other conference games involve Baldwin-Wallace at Akron, in a game Akron should win; Capital at Ohio Northern which may see Capital's three-game winning streak broken, and Marietta at Otterbein in a free-for-all. Capital has an excellent chance to win, especially because of Northern's injuries.

Dayton's ambitious team will be in the east Saturday playing Boston college and probably will lose three games in a row for the first time in seven years. Kenyon looks capable of taking Rochester in another eastern game but Case is practically sure of its first defeat in attempting Michigan State at Lansing.

Methodist To Battle Opponent from Big Ten

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 24.—Chastened somewhat by their 14-14 tie with Baylor university last week, the Southern Methodist university Mustangs hope to regain some of their lost prestige when they engage Indiana university in an intersectional tilt here tomorrow.

It will mark the first game a member of the Big Ten has played a southwest conference team in this state, and advance sales indicate upward of 35,000 spectators will witness the clash. The Methodists already have met one Hoosier eleven this year, losing a close struggle to Notre Dame at South Bend.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 24.—The first of a long series of winter golf tournaments open this afternoon with a strong field of contenders on hand seeking first prize money of $5,000.

Although a few of the nation's outstanding professionals failed to make their appearance as expected, a dozen ranking players were here for the opening round. The links stars on hand include Harry Cooper, Los Angeles; Craig Wood, New York; Mel Smith, Portland, Ore.; Olin Dutra, Del Monte, Cal.; Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Fred Morrison, Los Angeles; George Von Elm, Detroit; Al Espinosa, Chicago, and numerous others.

EASTERN GAMES TO DRAW HALF MILLION

80,000 To See Fordham-N. Y. U. Clash; Irish-Pitt Game Next.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Half a million football fans will turn out for the east's more than 50 games tomorrow, but close to 350,000 of them will be scattered among half a dozen contests.

In point of attendance, Yale's joust with the Army at New Haven; the all-metropolitan duel between Fordham and New York university in the Yankee stadium and Notre Dame's invasion of the east to meet the Pitt Panthers, will run a close race. These three games should draw about 230,000 spectators with 80,000 in the Yankee stadium and 75,000 apiece in the Yale bowl and the Pitt stadium. Some 120,000 probably will be distributed among three other big duels, Harvard-Dartmouth at Harvard stadium, Temple-Villanova at Philadelphia, and Princeton-Navy at Princeton.

Lagging a bit behind in point of attendance will be such classes as Brown-Holy Cross at Providence; Penn State-Colgate at State college and Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson in a night game at Atlantic City.

Syracuse meets St. Lawrence, Pennsylvania takes on Lehigh; Columbia meets Williams; Carnegie Tech faces Western Reserve at Cleveland; Western Maryland battles Loyola of Baltimore; Boston college stacks up against Dayton.

ERIE CO. EMPLOYES TO HEAR BROADCAST

"No Trespassing" Is Topic of Radio Program on Air Act. 26.

Employes of the Erie railroad will make a special effort to listen in to the radio broadcasts entitled "No Trespassing" which is scheduled to go on the air over stations WEAF of New York, WGR of Buffalo, WTIC of Akron and WLS of Chicago at 7 p. m. Oct. 26. The broadcasts will be on the nature of a safety campaign designed particularly to appeal as a lesson in caution to boys and girls prone to play about railroad yards.

There will be three scenes broadcast in the program each dealing with a separate piece of dangerous practices by those who trespass on railroad property.

The first will be entitled, "The Race for Life on the Tracks." It will emphasize the danger of walking on railroad tracks.

Scene two, which will depict the danger of the lazy rider of a moving train, will be entitled "The Blinding of Betty Snow."

Scene three, the real climax of the broadcast will be called "The Mystery Box Party." It deals with two children who are led into a fatal trap by grown-ups who place explosive caps under the right of way. Following this feature the broadcast returns to Uncle Zeb and his closing chats with the final warning to "No Trespassing means just that."

Tusk of Mastodon Is Discovered in Quarry

By International News Service

WAUCONDA, Ill.—Several bones, some of which were 12 inches in diameter, and a nine-foot tusk of a mastodon have been uncarthed here by workmen employed in a quarry, near Aromas.

The bones were carefully removed and sent to the University of California for examination by paleontologists.

Other fossils of clams, fish and other prehistoric fauna, were discovered in the granite ledge high in the Gabilan ranges.

Install Bar in Chamber of League of Nations

By International News Service

GENEVA—Cocktails are handy for all the delegates to the League of Nations now assembled here due to the words and persuasion of Carlos Beltramo, former well-known barman of the Hotel des Bergues, who succeeded in persuading the authorities to allow a bar in the new League quarters, the Batiment d'Etat. All the familiar ones such as Martinis, Rose, Bronx and Manhattans are listed at one Swiss franc each, which means about twenty cents for the American delegates. Bucardi Side cars, White Ladies, Alaska and Alexanders are one franc fifty centimes.

It is rumored that British delegate Lord Cecil opposed the establishment of a "drinkers bar" in the assembly quarters but finally consented, providing "that the public did not learn about it."

MAN BUYS CAR AND WIFE IS INCLUDED

Purchaser Asks To Return Latter and Judge Allows Annulment.

By International News Service.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—These modern conveniences, and high pressure salesmen!

They sold Robert Smith a car, they sold him a wife.

The car was fine but he would not return the wife. The judge promised an annulment. Smith is a merchant, and always returns unsatisfactory purchases.

The bride was even an unwilling purchase, Smith declared. The car salesman told Smith he had a nice wife to go with the new auto. She didn't want her. But the salesman brought her to see Smith time and again.

Then she came by herself one day, and after her appeared a salesman.

She picked out an engagement ring and the next day wrote me what a lovely man I was," Smith said. "So the next day we got married."

The bride told a different story when Smith asserts his wife said, "You old fool, I only married you for what I could get out of you."

He told the judge she got her $650 dentist bill and $145 in cash, and the judge thought that was enough.

Large numbers of American planes will be purchased by the new Peruvian government, O'Connor says.

Motorists Club To Try and Lessen Accidents

WASHINGTON—The American Motorists association has started a campaign to lessen the number of accidents on the highways. The organization's representatives will go before the legislatures of all those states that do not require motorists to pass physical exams before granting such operators' licenses.

Only 12 states have such legislation. The District of Columbia, while eight other states require drivers to have permits but do not compel them to prove their fitness and driving ability.

DOCTORS AND CRIMINOLOGISTS USE HAND-READING IN WORK

By International News Service

NEW YORK.—"Handology" is a new science.

The handologist, scorning the pretensions of the palmist, now attempts to tell us that although we may have a wonderful face our hands betray our thoughts.

The criminal investigator watches the hands of his subject as assiduously as he tries to discern character lines on the face.

A noted authority tells us that hands are the surest revealers of the reaction of the workings of the brain.

The hands are human trademarks. Occupations leave their impress in many ways. The stenographer has flattened fingertips. The pen-pusher has depressions between his fingers. The store salesman can be recognized by his "twine finger." The hands of a normal individual should bear a relative proportion to the general structure of the body.

THE palmist attempts to tell your future by head or heart lines or life lines. But the scientific handologist spurns these pretensions and studies the shape and size of the palm, as well as the fingers. Recently photographs off hands were turned over to an eminent authority.

On examination he gave the following analysis:

"They are the hands, short, square and dark-colored, of an intensely practical man with very strong feelings. They are so thick and square that they give an impression of violence. The thumb is enormously developed, indicating an exceptionally strong will."

The hands belonged to Benito Mussolini.

"They are the hands of an actor. Their owner is sensitive. His mentality is broad. He is firm and capable. The fingers are long but not pointed. They are the hands of a man with enthusiasm, but he will never let his enthusiasm run away with his career."

THIS was the analysis of David Lloyd George's hands.

Still another expert in reading the hands of Winston Churchill, British statesman, said:

"He is apt to be confused when hard pressed. He lacks the ability to rise and grapple with questions demanding sudden, energetic action."

Those who know Mr. Churchill's career—his political, artistic, literary and manual endeavors—will agree with the analysis.

The hands of Elsie Bartlett, actress and heiress, make a bid for admiration in their graceful pose, but of an egotistical nature. Mary Spas, one-time adopted daughter of Edward Browning, New York millionaire has sensitive artistic, hands, which made her shrink from the stain of publicity. Ruth Pratt, Congresswoman, shows a strong character capable and energetic, warm and loyal but easily angered.

A NUMBER of doctors recently have taken up the study of hands and have place as much, if not more confidence in hand-reading as in a diagnosis from an examination.

Consumption, heart disease, rheumatism, paralysis and nerve diseases can be detected by the peculiar shape of the fingers and nails. People with an "inferiority complex" are given to gestures, while strong-willed men have never been known to find it necessary to supplement their language with the working of the hands. Hand gestures are only a medium to enforce the workings of a dubious brain.

RUSH WORK ON HIGHWAY JOBS

Route 30 Paving Near Completion; Route 23 Bridge Progresses.

Work on the Harding Highway east of the city probably will be completed within two weeks if weather conditions are favorable, County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens said today.

Concrete for the four-mile strip was poured some time ago but the Somers Construction Co., which was awarded the $190,000 contract, is now building shoulders to the 20-foot concrete bed.

A. L. Babcoff, superintendent of the company, planned to have the road in shape for official inspection by Nov. 1, but weather conditions have prevented his men from working at the speed planned. The contract calls for the job to be finished by Nov. 15.

The project was begun early in the summer and due to the dry season conditions were favorable for early completion of the concrete pouring.

Work on the $35,000 bridge and approaches on route 23, south of Brush Ridge, is progressing slowly due to poor weather, it is reported. The bridge will eliminate two dangerous curves now existing on the road.

While the Harding Highway is being completed, motorists have been routed over route 95 from Marion to route 98 and north on the latter to route 30. No detours are necessary on the route 23 construction, which is entirely new, both the bridge and the approaches.

Himalayan "Race" Feared

Himalayan peasants warned members of the expedition which was preparing to scale Kanchenjunga that the topmost peaks of the great mountain range are guarded by a mysterious race, known as the Abominable Snow Men. The Snow Men have been described by natives, who claim to have seen them, as white-skinned, ape-like figures, naked, and covered with thick hair. On the 1929 expedition to Kanchenjunga, E. O. Shebbeare was told by his porters that that they had seen the footprints of a Snow Man, but by the time he had reached the spot a snow storm had obliterated any marks which might have been there.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Oct. 25

THE dominating planetary influence for this day accents the sudden possibility of a radical change of far-reaching importance, reacting on the genral affairs as well as the environment. This may have some rather undesirable effect on relations with employers, but in the main the auguries are for unexpected benefits and unusual experiences. However, this suddenly precipitated opportunity should not be too hastily or rashly embraced.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a sudden and quite unforeseen change, affecting the employment, the general trend of events and the residence. Unexpected benefits are in store, but change and travel should not be too precipitately embraced. A child born on this day should be clever, ingenious and have unusual talents for scientific research and original investigation and accomplishment. It may reach a place in the public eye.

Honor Memory of Monk Who Found Champagne

By International News Service.

EPERNAY, Marne—The clergy joined with the civil authorities recently in honoring the Benedictine monk, Dom Perignon, who discovered champagne more than two hundred years ago. A large group of important men laid a bronze palm on the tomb of the monk in the nave of the little church at Hautvillers a few miles from Epernay.

The total registration of New York City is 1,568,020, an increase of 15,087 over that of last year. Those New Yorkers must be preparing to do something.

What's this? An eighty-four-hour flagpole-sitting stunt here! There's no getting away from the fact. Marion is breaking right into the big city class.

Possibly the fact that Chinese communists are asking $3,500,000 ransom for fifteen prisoners held by them has escaped the attention of the League of Nations.

There is no money in the treasury of the city of Berlin, Germany, to pay the wages of city employes for October. Berlin evidently has become Americanized.

Visiting San Francisco, Herr Fritz von Opel, German rocket plane expert, predicted that twelve years hence planes would be flying at an altitude of twenty-five miles at a speed of from 3,000 to 5,000 miles an hour. Go to it Fritz. While you're telling it, make it good and big. Even a failure to deliver the goods will have been forgotten twelve years hence.

Interference was so great over the Pacific during the period of this week's eclipse of the sun that effective broadcasting from Niuafou island, to which the American and New Zealand scientists went to observe the eclipse, was utterly unintelligible. Now we know that the sun has something to do with radio, but just what is still one of the many radio mysteries.

The statistician of a big New York Life insurance company has announced that the mortality from alcoholism has increased 300 per cent. in this country in the last ten years. Considering the polson stuff being consumed, it's a wonder the percentage isn't 3,000.

Public Works and Employment.

The cabinet committee on unemployment, which seeks to expand public work with the purpose of relieving unemployment, has taken the first steps in the formation of a national organization to aid in unemployment relief. Colonel Arthur Woods has been appointed director for the relief program and it is anticipated that President Hoover will ask congress, when it convenes, to remove certain limitations on the amount of public construction funds which may be used in any period, so that construction may be carried on to the full extent as plans and designs are completed.

While such plans as have been made to date are only preliminary, the administration apparently has in mind a national program never approached before in scope. Of the $10,000,000,000 spent normally for building construction in the United States every year, $3,000,000,000 are represented by public works—federal, state, county and local. It is this class of expenditure that will be made the foundation of the relief program.

The federal government normally spends ten per cent. of the total sum of public works expenditures. It is obvious, therefore, that the most difficult part of any program to increase expenditures will be to influence state and local governments. The federal government's part will be to increase its expenditures from a little more than $300,000,000 to somewhere in the neighborhood of $400,000,000. Much of this sum will be represented in federal aid to state highways.

Bond issues provide a ready index for the volume of public work, since approximately one-half of new public construction by states, counties and municipalities is financed by new long-term or short-term bond issues. According to the "Bond Buyer," new state, county and municipal bond issues in the twelve months ended on September 30, 1930, amounted to $2,424,526,578 as against $2,175,639,593 for the twelve months ended September 30, 1929. This represents an increase of approximately 11½ per cent. Apparently state and local governments are doing their part; Governor Cooper's Ohio program has been lauded publicly by the President. It is estimated that voters will pass upon new bond issues at the November elections totalling approximately $450,000,000.

It is a well-worn theory of government that construction of public works provides a means of absorbing economic strain. A year from now, the activities of the administration to use public works for such a purpose will demonstrate for the first time in history whether the theory is practical—or just a good theory.

Longer Terms for State Officials.

Addressing a gathering over in Ashland, one night this week, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman declared that the plan of electing state officers to two-year terms was costing the taxpayers of Ohio hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in lost motion and inefficiency.

The attorney general explained that the two-year term plan had been doing duty in Ohio since away back in 1850, having become the rule with the constitution of that date. Considering the volume of the state's business at that time, the plan may have worked very well, but Ohio has been coming along during the eighty intervening years. Ohio has grown until its population is now approximately 7,500,000, and its business has increased over a hundred times. Yet the old plan is retained.

"What business institution, handling nearly $100,000,000 annually," the attorney general asked, "would ever think of switching all of its officers and personnel every two years?"

The attorney general didn't even take the trouble to say that such a course would be held unthinkable in the business world, probably because of his conviction that there is general realization of the fact that no great business enterprise would be guilty of such folly, but he did proceed to show how the state suffered as the result of the biennial election of its officers by using the office of the state executive as an illustration. As a rule, he said, the first five months of a governor's administration are given to the selection of "a new and green cabinet and hundreds of new and green employes, together with his program with the legislature, which sits just as he takes office." If the governor seeks reelection, he is forced to begin campaigning about ten months later, and thus but ten of the twenty-four months of his time can be given to being governor—to the real, constructive work of the office. What is true in the governor's office is true in a somewhat lesser degree in all the state offices, all of which is costly.

There can be no question regarding the tendency of two-year terms toward waste of time and sacrifice of efficiency. This has been so generally recognized that it has brought about the lengthening of the terms of the county officials whose duties require more technical knowledge, yet the terms of elective state officials are limited to the two years established eight decades ago.

The plan is wrong, and there should be general recognition of the fact that it no more meets the demands of present-day Ohio than does our archaic system of taxation, which should have been remodeled years ago, but hasn't been, although there is hope that our tax laws will be brought up to date in the near future.

There is hardly ground, however, for a like hope in connection with the terms of state officials, so long as that offspring of the radicalism which marked the last state constitutional convention, the primary, is in being. So long as the primary system is in force with all the opportunities it offers for the attainment of office by the incompetent and unfit, there will be question regarding the lengthening of the terms of state officials. The primary is the stumbling block. It was because of the fact that, in smaller political divisions, everybody comes pretty nearly knowing everybody else, and thus is better able to judge of the fitness of candidates seeking support, that the primary system didn't block the way to the lengthening of the terms of some of the county officers. But the voters can not thus know state candidates, and hence there will be hesitation about the inauguration of action looking to longer terms for state officials, which every tenet of good business and efficiency suggests should be taken.

From Berlin comes the announcement of a duck-shaped plane which is non-capsizable, which naturally brings to mind the remark of the man who for the first time saw a giraffe: "There ain't no sich animule."

Announcement has been made that the talkie producers no longer use off-stage artists to supply songs while the movie people move their lips. This probably explains why the canned musical comedy stars suddenly became voiceless.

United States engineers surveying a new canal route through Nicaragua have discovered the ruins of another Aztec city. Judging by the extent of their construction, there couldn't have been much unemployment back in Aztec times.

Deep regret is bound to be felt by all movie fans over the announcement that Renee Adoree is in a Prescott, Arizona, hospital suffering from pulmonary trouble. Unlike a long line of women stars made by producers and press agents, Renee Adoree succeeded through her ability. Her acting in "The Big Parade" made her, just as Valentino was made in "The Four Horsemen."

The Italian cabinet has approved an appropriation of $7,000,000 for urgent public works to aid employment. Doesn't look like so much over here, but $7,000,000 will go a long way in Italy, where labor is cheap and every cent of it will be employed to accomplish relief.

The Ohio supreme court has held the "contribution system" of wagering at horse and dog races to be illegal. It's an awful waste of a high-court's time to carry to it cases such as this "test" case from Summit county. If the "contribution system" hadn't been a gambling game it never would have had existence; it came into existence only to meet the gambling demand.

The work of reconstructing the section of Main street from Center has been finished and that section of the street has been opened to traffic. And the fight to determine who is to build it is still being waged in the courts! Some odd things turn up in this old life of ours.

The department of commerce in Washington announces that the value of horse-drawn vehicles save two-wheel carts fell off thirteen per cent. in 1929, the latest year for which figures are available, while the decrease in wheelbarrows was only fourteenths of one per cent, and the two-wheel carts showed a 111.9 per cent. increase. The country must have been rather busy working two years ago.

Editorial Opinion.

THE SIX-HOUR DAY.

The proposal of the railroad labor group to establish a six-hour day as a means of coping with the unemployment problem had been anticipated. Even before traffic began to decline in connection with the current trade depression complaint was heard in rail circles about the decreased number of runs. For this the diversion of traffic to motor vehicles was in part responsible. The operation of longer, heavier trains with one crew moving as much freight as formerly had been moved by two or more was another factor.

No one is wise enough now to foresee the effect of a six-hour day in an industry as important as rail transportation. Once adopted there, labor in other fields would demand comparably favorable treatment. Acceptance of the eight-hour day for rail labor when the Adamson act was passed, led to its wide adoption elsewhere.

Heretofore arguments for a decrease in working time have been made largely on humanitarian grounds. In rail transportation considerations of public safety also operated in favor of the shorter day.

For a further reduction in working time from eight hours to six hours, however, these arguments are scarcely convincing. It is probably not inconsistent with the health of the worker or with the safety of the public to employ men for as long as eight hours.

A reduction in working hours, if the present daily wage were maintained, would presumably increase the cost of production. It would be unsound to establish as permanent a policy designed merely to meet a transient condition.

The six-hour day suggestion has such far-reaching possibilities that wise men will hesitate to pass judgment until they have given it thorough study.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE GREEN CROSS, A NEW SYMBOL.

Since the dawn of Christianity, the cross has been the symbol of love, mercy and succor. It is utilized not only for ecclesiastical purposes, but for other fields of human endeavor where rescue of the perishing is the prime purpose. Thus, we have the red cross, symbol of help for humans, and the blue cross, sign of succor for animals, particularly the poor, dumb victims of war.

Now comes a new symbol, the green cross, which the Manchester Guardian tells us is to stand for the protection of countrysides where man, in the name of pregress, or through his ignorance and heartlessness, is mowing down vegetable life with small regard for beauty or his own future welfare. To the rescue of trees, particularly; flowers and shrubs will come the little army moving under the banner upon which is emblazoned the sign of the green cross.

Just as we welcome the trend toward greater kindness to humans and to animals, we find great cause for satisfaction in this movement to extend the hand of mercy to growing things. There seems to be a definite need for it, if the exalting beauty of lane and countryside is to be preserved. The ruthless hand of the woodsman and the despoiler of nature must be stayed, or we shall be forced to look out upon a cold and barren world before many decades.

Paraphrasing the tentmaker, what can the hand of man create that is half so precious as the gifts of nature that he destroys with such abandon? Nothing, we believe. But we forge thoughtlessly ahead, exchanging a clump of ancient trees for a gaudy filling station, a hedgerow for a brick wall and a flower-carpeted oasis for a real estate sub-division. Success to the green cross, which hopes to salvage a bit of God's handiwork from the path of civilization's steam roller.—Columbus Dispatch.

What Side To Sleep On?

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"Do you sleep on your left side, or is the right side the best side to sleep on?" was a question asked me the other day. I scratched my head and appeared very thoughtful, but to be frank, I could not recall on which side I do sleep.

Numerous text-books, investigations and articles have been written on this subject and it seems no two authorities agree. As a matter of fact, I do not believe it makes much difference whether we sleep on the right side or on the left side.

Sleep is brought about by fatigue and the body attempts to rest by the relaxation afforded during sleep. If you are accustomed to sleeping on your left side and sleep well, by no means force yourself to change to the right side.

The position you assume when going to sleep is not the position in which you find yourself on awakening. The body changes its position many times during the night. Have you ever watched children sleep, and noticed their various contortions? They will assume different positions, tossing about quite frequently, yet they are thoroughly relaxed and are resting in their sleep.

Some authorities advise sleeping on the back, and then again others do not. Some advise sleeping on the abdomen and others warn against it, stating it is dangerous. If we were to listen to all the advice, we would not know how to sleep and the thought of that alone would probably keep a good many of us awake.

The most frequent question asked is whether it is safe to sleep on the left side. This question arises because of the location of the heart on the left side. Most persons believe it is not advisable to sleep on the left side, on the theory that it interferes with the action of the heart. This theory has never been proven and appears to me to be very doubtful. I would advise you to sleep on whichever side suits you. No catastrophe ever occurred from sleeping on the left side. I doubt if it will ever be proven it makes any difference. Providing we sleep well and get up refreshed, it matters not what the posture is.

Recent observations conducted at the Mellon institute in Pittsburgh, show that restful sleep is accomplished by many bodily positions. As a result of these studies it would be ridiculous to advise any healthy individual to spend the night in one position. It is rare indeed for one position to be maintained during the night's sleep.

Even if you decided you should sleep on your right side it would be necessary to strap you down to guarantee that position. This would be the only method I know of to keep you in that one position. This method will not be recommended, of course.

Give yourself plenty of fresh air at night. Do not pile on the bed clothes too thickly. Do not crowd your stomach with a lot of unnecessary food just before retiring. Go to bed to sleep and leave it to your instinct to determine the position your tired body is to take.

The Science of Chemistry.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most interesting of sciences is chemistry, and yet it is one of the most useless. It is almost impossible for any thinking today to realize that chemistry as practiced today has a history of little more than two centuries. Back of chemistry are the fantastic and fantastic alchemy. But all of these are dreams and theories about the nature of substance, and strange practical formulations regarding the combination of matter. But we have to come down to modern times—specifically to the seventeenth century—to find the true origin of chemical science as we know it today.

The germ of modern scientific method—the root principle—was formulated by Roger Bacon. Priestley, Cavendish, Lavoisier laid strong and sure foundations and basic principles of true scientific method in chemistry. Liebig, Wohler, Ramsay, Richards and countless others have carried on this technic and these principles in our own era.

For two centuries the science of chemistry did not exist. Investigators there were and in plenty from the time of primitive man down through the ages. But science, such as it was, may best be described as empirical. Great tomes were written, vast results were kept, of the results of observation. If two or more substances were brought together certain things would take place. The results were known, but the reasons for those results were not understood. Chemistry, like physics, may be described as a science of exact measurement. Chemistry requires elaborate and delicate apparatus: test tubes, retorts, scales, thermometers, barometers and countless pieces of refined machinery which often have to be invented or specially manufactured in order to carry through particular experiments.

Chemistry is dangerous. This has been so ever since the time of the invention of gunpowder and other forms of explosives. It has been demonstrated countless times that nothing is more dangerous in a chemical laboratory than ignorance. The pharmacist must know which drug or drugs in combination are deadly in their effects. The chemist must know—and must know why—certain substances when combined will blow things into smithereens.

For 2,000 years science scarcely progressed in theory, beyond the more or less mystical ideas of Aristotle. It was he who formulated the theory that the universe was made of four elements—earth, air, fire and water. But today a chemical element is a very different thing to that designated as an element by Aristotle. After a time the study of substances was taken up by a group of people who called themselves alchemists. Alchemy was a weird combination of religion and science, of superstition and natural philosophy. Spirits were believed to inhabit substances; the elements had their respective deities. Scientific experiment was a form of magnified fake; chemical and physical demonstrations were made with great hocus pocus. The people must not be enlightened, but must be mystified. Solemn incantations must be spoken and the power of spirits or of the divine being invoked.

For centuries science had to fight a battle with the church. From Bacon to Priestley scientists were persecuted, imprisoned or punished for following the path of reason. But the battle was won in recent times, and chemistry is one of the great and permanently established institutions of civilization. Without chemistry our civilization could scarcely endure. The chemistry of food is one of the most useful and indispensable features of modern industry and modern science.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Witchcraft in Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Witchcraft was practiced in Ohio as well as in New England and as late as 1814, according to Jacob Burnet in his Ohio notes. He tells of an enterprising farmer in the Mill Creek valley of Hamilton county who had engaged in the breeding of thoroughbred horses. One after another of his valuable animals died and the veterinarians of that day, unable to diagnose the trouble or cure it, advised it must be the work of a witch. He was told how to prepare a concoction which, as it was boiled, would make the guilty witch very uncomfortable and possibly lead to her detection. He followed directions and it happened that just as the cauldron began to boil furiously and the farmer looked out over his farm to see what would happen, his daughter-in-law crossed a field on her way to a spring for water, and his son was ordered to remove from the farm immediately.

But still the horses died, and suspicion turned to a frail old woman in the neighborhood. Consulting his friends again the farmer was told that if a silver bullet were shot into a horse that was bewitched the guilty witch would be killed by it.

These directions he also followed with the result that the horse so shot was killed instantly and not long thereafter the old woman who was suspected died also, but not until she had heard she was under suspicion. She was so grieved over this that it was probably the cause of her death.

Pyramids of Egypt.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Kafre, the second of the great pyramids at Gizeh, about which I told you last week, while smaller than Khufu, gives the impression of being much larger when seen from a distance because it stands on higher ground. Actually it is 447 feet high, while Khufu, if you remember, is 481. The third pyramid, mid is only 204 feet high and has but one chamber. It was here that the coffin and mummy of King Menkure, now to be seen in the British museum, were found.

The Great Sphinx was no such engineering feat in its creation as were the pyramids. It is hewn out of solid rock and is sixty-six feet high. It is, of course, one of the great curiosities which the visitor to Egypt looks for. There are many legends concerning it. One which is of interest is that the mutilated condition of the face as it is now, was caused by the Moslems who came into power in Egypt long after the Sphinx was built and who resented the expression on the face, or rather what it stood for. Whether this is true may be considered with doubt, but that the crouching body itself has been saved from the drifting sands which cut like a knife when driven before the wind. Nevertheless, the Sphinx is still, and probably will be, a noble and majestic figure.

There has been a good deal of speculation as to how the Sphinx came into being. One theory is that it was the work of Khafre and included in his burial ground. Another is that originally it was an ugly rock which protruded in the view of the second pyramid, and in order to improve the scenery the figure of the Sphinx was carved on it. A large part of the body is buried in the sand to a great depth, which adds weight to this theory.

One visit which the traveler should not fail to make is that to the Coptic Church of St. Sergius, over in the old city and inside the walls of the ancient fortress of Babylon built by the Romans.

There is a widely believed claim that Joseph and Mary rested on this spot in a crypt underneath what is now the church, while they brought Jesus to Egypt. Therefore the church itself has great interest for students of the Bible and the religious history of the world.

The best minds have agreed that the monastery of Abu Sergius was built much earlier than the eighth century, but just how much earlier has not been determined.

M'CULLOCH HITS AT INTERNATIONALISM

United States Senator Speaks at Shovel Auditorium; Is Luncheon Guest.

dangerous position," the senator declared. "It means stripping the eighteenth amendment of all enforcement and enabling legislation leaving the amendment a dead letter, which really means nullification of the constitution of the United States.

"The ridiculousness of his position should be apparent to every thinking person. Everybody who knows anything about the machinery which must be put into operation to repeal the eighteenth amendment knows that there is not one chance in a thousand that the eighteenth amendment can be repealed in the present situation.

"It requires two-thirds of the congress to refer an amendment to the states, and three-fourths of the states must ratify the amendment before it becomes effective. Thirteen states can block an amendment. Thirty-seven states were dry before the eighteenth amendment was ratified. So there is not a chance of repealing the eighteenth amendment."

No Constructive Suggestion

"What would happen in this country, in this mechanical age, with thousands of autos on every road, if we wiped out our federal laws regulating the liquor traffic?

"My opponent offers not a single constructive suggestion for remedying the conditions of which he complains, except only to repeal all federal laws.

"My opponent says the old saloon is gone forever, but he does not tell us what the new saloon will be like. Will his new saloon be on every corner—in the filling stations and in the soft drink parlors? When is a saloon not a saloon? The man who would tear down a structure should exhibit the ability to build something in its place. What is to take the place of our federal laws if they are wiped out?

"I stand for the Constitution of the United States and I stand for constitutional law enforcement. My record on this question is a voting record. When a member of the house of representatives, I voted to refer the eighteenth amendment to the states for ratification or rejection. I voted for enabling legislation. I have not changed my position. We must take no backward step on this great moral question.

"The fundamental policy of our party for 50 years has been the protective tariff. This policy has brought prosperity to our business people, laborers and farmers unknown in any other nation. This great industrial state, the third greatest in the nation in the production of industrial products with its millions of workers is for protection.

"The issue is for protection against free trade and that means Americanism against internationalism, home industries against expatriated capital invested by Americans in factories in foreign countries. It means American prosperity against European prosperity. It means standing for America first and the rest of the world afterward.

"During the present worldwide depression, which our country was the last to feel and from which it will be the first to recover, there has developed additional need for protection. Some of our large manufacturers are building plants in foreign countries, employing foreign labor and shipping their products back into the American market.

Touches on Labor

The senator also touched on the subject of American labor, declaring that he was for strict immigration, which, he said, would keep out cheap labor, giving the jobs in America to people living here, and thus helping to keep up the present standards of living. He said Henry Ford and other industrialists were transferring many of their activities to foreign countries, obtaining labor as low as $1 a day and sending their finished products back to this country in competition with American workmen who get much larger wages. He said Ford had closed up his Dearborn tractor plant and was making all tractors in Cork, Ireland, leaving hundreds of American men without jobs.

"American capitalists would not be interested in building factories abroad and employing foreign labor if they were unable to ship the goods made abroad back to America and sell them at a greater profit than they could if they made them in America, paying the higher American wages," the senator declared. "Prosperity will be transferred from America to Europe if these industrialists are permitted to ship their products back to the United States duty free. That's why I am for a protective tariff to protect the American markets and the American workmen."

McCulloch assailed the statement of John W. Barton, vice-president of the American Bankers association, who declared before the association's recent convention in Cleveland that "the American standard of living is too high." Barton, he said, advocated a reduction of the tariff, the letting down of the bars of restrictive immigration and the placing of our standards of living on the low levels of foreign countries.

Opponent Against Tariff

"My opponent has consistently opposed the protective tariff. He has consistently opposed restrictive immigration. His voting record in congress is in line with Mr. Barton's position and would reduce our standards of living.

"Our people will not agree with the position taken by Mr. Barton or my opponent. They will agree with President Hoover, who recently said in addressing the convention of the American Bankers association:

"'Some one suggested in your discussion that our American standard of living should be lowered. With that I emphatically disagree. I do not believe it represents the views of this association. Not only do I not accept such a theory, but on the contrary the whole purpose and ideal of this economic system which is distinctive of our country is to increase the standard of our living by the adoption and the constant diffusion of invention and discovery among the whole of our people.

"'Any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a cesspool of poverty for some large part of our people.'

"Our people will also agree with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who said:

"'The protective tariff and limited immigration acts go hand in hand. The average man in America is for protection of the American investor here, rather than for protection of the investor abroad. He is for a high standard of living in America.'

Money Goes Abroad

"It is estimated that at the end of 1928 there were more than 200 American factories abroad, which were financed and controlled by Americans. The latest estimate is that this number has increased to 1,200 in 1930. The cost of these investments has reached 26 billions of dollars, which has almost doubled in two years.

"What does this mean?

"It means that foreign labor is being preferred over American labor. It means that payrolls are being spent in European markets. It means that prosperity is being transferred from America to Europe.

"American capitalists would not be interested in building factories abroad and employing foreign labor if they were unable to ship their goods made abroad back into this country and sell them at a greater profit than they could if they manufacture them in this country, paying American wages. It is in my opinion a short-sighted policy, because in the end if such a policy should become general, the American market, the greatest in the world, will be destroyed.

"It has been estimated that 40 per cent of the labor cost of production is consumed in food by the workers who produce the articles. The farmers of this country know that a well-paid working class is their chief reliance for a profitable home market for home products.

"It must be apparent to all, with this new policy being announced that a protective tariff and restricted immigration are more necessary than ever before in order to protect goods made in America by well-paid American workers.

"Ours is the greatest country in the world. We have the most extensive natural resources. We are the richest country on the face of the earth. This is the land of golden opportunity.

"If our policies of government are sound, if our statesmen are forward looking capable and patriotic every man and woman in America should be able to make an honest living.

"In this land of plenty no one who wants to work should be forced to remain long unemployed. But we must look after our own. We must think of America first and the rest of the world afterward. We must protect our market for the products of American labor and not turn our markets over to the products of cheap foreign labor."

answered the general description of the one used by the Bowman brothers in previous robberies. The rear window of the car was broken out, and it was from this opening that the men returned the policeman's fire.

Steal Another Car

After the officers beat through the woods and came out on the other side, they learned that shortly after daylight, two men answering the description of the men sought, had stolen an automobile with a green body from the Miller brothers' fruit farm about six miles from Chillicothe on the Frankfort pike. The car carried Ohio license 91-943. Officers in surrounding counties were asked to watch roads in the hope the pair might be intercepted.

Jim and John Booges, brothers, suspected members of the Bowman gang, were arrested at St. Marys, W. Va., last week and given prison terms.

scheduled to appear if she arrived before the meeting closed.

Miss Libbie Griffith of Kenton stressed the importance of organization in her talk this afternoon. She pointed out that organization which enlisted all women in political activities was essential, and stressed the importance of a women's organization in every ward. She was an ardent booster of Carl W. Smith of Kenton, candidate for congress.

Mrs. Burke Johnson of Kenton was expected to arrive this afternoon in time for an address.

An unusual treat was given on the afternoon program when Mrs. Lucille Magill Weems, talented vocalist, gave several numbers. She was accompanied by Mrs. Car W. Smith, wife of the Democratic candidate for congress.

TUNNEL CRASH TOLL INCREASED TO THREE

Louis Romando, Brakeman on Train Caught in Collapse, Dies Today.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 24—The toll in the collapse of a tunnel near here which buried a freight train yesterday rose to three today with the death of the sole survivor of the accident, Louis Romando, 32, brakeman.

Romando died at Martins Ferry hospital shortly before dawn of a crushed chest, internal injuries and a fractured right arm and leg suffered when he was pinned in the wreckage of the caboose, shattered in an avalanche of stones and dirt.

Two other trainmen, who with Romando composed the crew of the caboose, died yesterday. They were Jerry O. Sells, 40, conductor and E. E. Duda, 35, brakeman. All of the victims lived in Dillonvale.

Romando directed his own release yesterday—and was removed from the debris by wreckers.

BRAZIL GOVERNMENT IS SEIZED BY REBELS

leadership of Dr. Getulio Varag Vargas, president of the state and defeated candidates in the recent national presidential elections.

The state of Santa Catharina and Parana fell quickly into line and a large southern army was rushed to the Parana-Sao Paulo border, where battles have been in progress for more than two weeks, with conflicting claims of victory. The fighting has centered about Itarare, railroad point, on the Sao Paulo border.

The insurgent movement was based primarily on charges of a dictatorship of the metropolitan districts. The Liberal party, headed by Vargas, charged they were defrauded in the last presidential election.

Official Corruption Charged

Just as in other South American republics in which the governments were overthrown this year, charges of extravagance and misappropriation of public funds were made by the insurgents.

The government charged by statement and inference that the revolution was inspired by Communistic agitation and cited the red flags used by the insurgents in support of their contention. The insurgents answered this charge with a statement that the red flag had always been the flag of the Liberal party leaders in the movement.

Throughout the government claimed that it had the movement under control. As late as Wednesday night dispatches from Sao Paulo and Rio de Janiero said that except for arrival of occasional batches of wounded the two cities were calm and normal and that it was almost unthinkable that a revolution or civil war existed only a few hundred miles away.

Britain, U. S., Send Warships

Both Great Britain and the United States sent warships to the country as a precautionary measure and the U. S. S. Cruiser Pensacola arrived only yesterday at Pernambuco, anchoring outside the harbor for a few hours, and then proceeding to Bahia, which then presumably was still loyal to the government. President Hoover Wednesday declared an embargo on arms and ammunition to Brazil, indicating, however, that the Rio de Janeiro government, a recognized de jure administration, might purchase such in the United States with permits from the secretary of state.

Fall of the Brazilian government marks the fourth overthrow of a de jure administration by revolution in South America since the first of the year. The governments of Bolivia, Peru and the Argentine have fallen before revolutionists. Some unrest developed also in Cuba, Chile, and to some extent in Mexico, but the governments of those countries remained in control.

In no case, except Brazil, however, did the rebellion occupy more than a few days.

IT IS PROPOSED to spend two hundred millions, or so, of public money to help the unemployed. Corporations are urged to tax themselves and contribute.

But we are told that there must be no dole, none of the English system under which government gives the minimum necessary to live, in cash, directly to those out of work.

Everybody hopes it will not be necessary to start the dole here. On the other hand, if money were given direct to those that need it to be spent by themselves, that might be better than spending by committees, and avoid the unpleasant feeling of charity.

Give a woman $15 a week and somehow she will take care of herself and four or five children. No institution can do that.

AGITATION continues about Britain's attitude toward Jerusalem and Palestine generally. Jews denounce Britain's labor government for not living up to its "mandate," and conspicuous Jews resign positions in Zionism as a protest.

Dr. Holmes, clergyman of the Community church in New York, urges Palestine Jews to unite with the Arabs in a war of passive resistance against the British government along the line of Gandhi's passive resistance in India.

But conditions are different. In India Gandhi resists tax collection. In Palestine the British don't collect, they spend millions a year on their mandate, keeping Arabs from murdering Jews. A combination of Arabs and Jews for passive resistance might persuade Britain's labor government to drop the mandate and say, "Run the country yourselves."

With Arabs outnumbering Jews ten to one, that would be dangerous.

What he writes will not please some congressmen. The man in the green hat has been bootlegger-in-chief to members of congress. He declares that "a majority of both houses" depended on him for their bootleg supplies. And they drank it under the dome of the capitol.

a ceremonious registration of the marriage.

A last minute rearrangement will permit the ceremony to be held in the so-called upper church of St. Francis.

An expert squad of traffic policemen from Rome has been imported to handle tomorrow's traffic.

Besides King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena, other royal figures present will include the former Queen Sophie of Greece and no less than 25 princes and princesses of the blood.

Princess Giovanna is a tall, pretty, black-haired, brown-eyed girl, who will be 23 years old Nov. 13. She has known Boris for several years, their romance having been thwarted for a long time because of religious complications involved. She is said to have visited the tomb of St. Francis no less than eight times recently to pray that these objections be overcome, and that when finally they were overcome to have been insistent that the ceremony take place in the church sacred to him.

Boris is 36 years old and has sat on the throne of his country since abdication of his father, Oct. 3, 1919. He also is tall and is known as one of the handsomest monarchs of Europe. He is very popular among his own kingdom.

legislative, rehabilitation, liaison and educational publicity services.

The work of the organization includes the correcting of affidavit evidence submitted by claimants and the assisting of claimants in the proper presentation and prosecution of their claims before the various rating agencies. It also prepares briefs on claimant cases to convince rating boards and appellant groups that their claims are not only equitable and meritorious but also legally proper.

Records of the organization show that in Ohio 643 veterans are receiving treatment in the hospital at Chillicothe and that the national home for Disabled Volunteer soldiers at Dayton is now caring for 2,181 World war veterans, 745 of whom are receiving treatment. Nearly two-thirds of the 105,244 veterans who were hospitalized during the last fiscal year received no compensation whatsoever for themselves or their families, a check by the organization shows.

Final plans for the sale will be made at a meeting tonight at the library auditorium.

Captains of the teams are Miss Juanita Ellison, Mrs. Hershel Fulk, Mrs. R. Vernon Price, Miss Minerva McMurray, Miss Muriel McMurray and Miss Virginia Sullivan. Fred Miller is chairman of the sale.

SEWAGE PLANT COST SAID TO BE LOW HERE

plant to disintegrate and cease to function.

The estimated life of the sewage plant is 25 years. With proper operation and maintenance the plant should function efficiently many years longer than the estimated life but not unless it is given the necessary care. The plant represents a cash investment of $538,200 and should not be allowed to decline for want of funds the one-mill levy would guarantee.

"The average per capita cost for treating the sewage of Marion, based on records of six and a half years, is about 63 cents a person a year. This figure compares favorably with the cost of sewage disposal in other cities. Even this economical figure cannot be maintained if the various city departments cannot receive sufficient funds to operate more than 10 months a year.

Rental Possible

"It is obvious that sufficient funds must be provided not only to continue the successful operation and maintenance of the half-million-dollar sewage plant but also the other departments of the city.

"Marionites may face prospects of a sewer rental charge if the one-mill levy is defeated. Some 20 municipalities in Ohio finance the operation and maintenance of their sewer systems and treatment works by charging those connected to the sanitary sewer system a fixed assessment. This is authorized by the sewer rental law and can be placed into effect by ordinance by action of council.

"Operation of a billing bureau and employment of persons [illegible] charge of collecting this [illegible] ment would entail much expe[illegible] although the system is a fair [illegible] to provide for the operation [illegible] sewage disposal plant. However [illegible] appears the cheapest method [illegible] be to raise money by a tax [illegible] assuring proper operation [illegible] sewage plant as well as other [illegible] partments of the city."

Is College Girl

Betty's going to college and it was discovered by her fellow men being praised for their endurance feats on flagpoles so she started out herself. She's landed her title and she's out to keep it.

Floral lights will be trained on her as she attempts to stay on her perch for four days and nights. Betty gets a real kick out of her strange business and as she said yesterday, "I'm doing what you're doing you have to like it."

There seems to be mountains of money lying around for shrewd men to make.

In a book development is romance; in real life, a nuisance.
